WHY COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

You are often told to "beware of cold." But why? We will tell you: Every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases. People who contract pneumonia first take cold. The longer a cold hangs on, the greater the danger, especially from the germ diseases, as a cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs of consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough. The quicker you get rid of your cold, the less the danger of contracting one of these diseases. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a great reputation as a cure for colds and can be depended upon. It is pleasant to take.

LEXINGTON, KY.

TRANSYLVANIA HAS OLDEST LIBRARY

PRICELESS COLLECTION OF BOOKS OWNED BY LEXINGTON COLLEGE NOT IN FIREPROOF HOUSE.

MANY WORKS ARE IN LATIN

Ancient Medical and Law Books Could Not Be Replaced—Many of Them Centuries Old.

Lexington, Ky.—The oldest library in Kentucky and one of the oldest in the United States, a library estimated by lovers of old books to be worth $250,000, which is centuries old, is one of the possessions of Transylvania College, the first college west of the Alleghenies, whose financial foundation was formed by the escheated estates of three Revolutionary period Tories.

Probably nowhere else in America, if anywhere else in the world, can the volumes of Transylvania's old library be duplicated.

Many of these priceless old books are of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, true examples of what was then a fine art, the type as clear as the day they were printed, many of the texts in Latin, though some of them like William Cowper's "Anatomy of Human Bodies," 1688, and Culpepper's "Astrological Judgment of Diseases," 1655, both published in London, are in the English of that time.

These books were purchased by Transylvania College in 1821.

were costly and few. Dr. Charles Caldwell, of the Medical College of Transylvania, took with him to Paris in 1821 the sum of seventeen thousand dollars with which to buy books for the medical library, and these books still are consulted by the medical experts of America, who can find them nowhere else. Dr. Caldwell found that because of the stormy times in France many libraries which had belonged to Frenchmen heretofore in the wealthy classes had found their way to the bookshelves of America.

Tells of Purchases.

"I found and purchased," he says in his report, "no inconsiderable number of the choicest works of the fathers of medicine, from Hippocrates to the revival of letters—works which in no other way, and perhaps at no other time, could have been collected so readily and certainly and on terms so favorable, either in Paris or any other city of the world. Hence the decided superiority of Transylvania's medical library, in those works, to any other in the west and south, and probably in the whole United States."

Dr. Peter and Dr. Bush, of the medical school, in 1838 made another foreign purchase for the medical college, when they spent eleven thousand dollars for books and apparatus in London and Paris. One of Dr. Bush's cameras, first given to the world in that year, is among the apparatus they brought back to Lexington, and it is today in Transylvania's museum, along with other rare and costly apparatus of that early date.

This medical library is practically intact, and is rich in rare material for the medical student and author. Printed in the clean, clear type of the period, their bindings are such as to delight the eye of the book lover and connoisseur.

Rafinesque's Works.

The collection of medical botanics and works on natural history especially are interesting and show the influence of Rafinesque himself, who for seven years, from 1819 to 1826, was the head of this department in Transylvania. Among the bird books there is the set of Alexander Wilson, published in Philadelphia from 1808 to 1813, with five volumes added to it about twenty years later by Charles Lucien Bonaparte; George Edwards' "Natural History of Birds" and "Gleanings of Natural History," published in London, 1743 to 1764; "The Natural History of Carolina, Florida and the Bahama Islands," by Mark Catesby, published in London in 1771; all large volumes with beautiful, clear-cut plates. Besides these, there is the "Dictionnaire des Sciences Naturelles," of M. Dumont de Sainte-Croix, printed in Paris between 1816 and 1830, probably the most artistically illustrated of any in the set.

The first publication on the general botany of North America is in this library. It is the "Flora Boreali-Americana" of Andre Michaux, published in Paris in 1803. There are also "Flora Virginica," by Joly. Clayton, published in Leyden in 1702; William C. B. Barton's "The Flora of North America," published in Philadelphia in 1823, and many others of equal interest.

The Old Law Library.

This old law library was once as valuable as the medical and other scientific books, but unfortunately has not been so well preserved through the centuries. There are left, however, many interesting books, among them the Hargrave collection of state trials, in which are found the proceedings at the trial of Captain William Kidd for piracy; the trial of Anne Boleyn, in which her last letter to King Henry is published; the trials of Sir Walter

Older Boys' Conference

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Poynter have been sick, but we are glad to report that they are better at this writing.

Eleven of our high school boys attended the Older Boys' Conference at Somerset, March 5, 6, 7. This conference was held under auspices of the State Young Men's Christian Association.

The banquet given by the Domestic Science Class of the Somerset school was one of the most enjoyable happenings of the convention. It is said that no other school in our state can serve and prepare a meal for so many in its own walls. The welcome address was given by Prof. Sam Mayfield, Chester Gragg, Judge E. T. Wesley and Rev. C. H. Talbott. Response D. H. Lyon.

The address of the evening was delivered by Dr. W. A. Ganfield, President of Centre College.

Saturday the boys listened to talks and addresses from the following: Mr. R. W. Raaf, District Sec'y Y. M. C. A.; Mr. L. J. Darter, Boys' Work Sec'y, Y. M. C. A.; Mr. P. C. Dix, State Sec'y Y. M. C. A. The evening address was given by Dr. R. H. Crossfield, President of Transylvania College.
